Race Analysis: First look at Destructive Diva back on her home turf since Cup Day where she beat nothing but did it well. Landed in tougher spots since with this looking her best scenario to date. Should stalk Chop The Ice who zipped around the Acton first up and posted a better timefigure than Insane Volt did over the same course two weeks prior. Can put faith in the clock on the consistent surface. No issues back to the turf for Chop The Ice. No match but he did hold up okay in the Opal and the Preview here.

Race Analysis: Small field but fairly open. Soft lean is to Whetu who got the job done in a weak race last time but was full of running at the finish, as he was when winning impressively at this course and distance back in February. A repeat of that form would go a long way to winning this. Poker Dice also has a C&D win of interest and he can have plenty more to offer having done best in a very slowly run race around the Acton last time.

Race Analysis: Wasn't bundles expected of Moritz Girl first up but she zipped home in good splits and laid the foundation for a big campaign. Mile here looks ideal. Stablemate Vadamos Queen was no match for her there but her win back in New Zealand came in a stronglyrun race and she could be well worth forgiving off two sit-and-sprints since coming across the Tasman. Up to the mile looks a plus and a big field should ensure this is a true test. Drawn to be in the firing line. Miss Ghent comes through the same race but she had the fitness edge there and rode a steady pace.

Race Analysis: Big field but the betting has it nice and sharp at the top end - and doubt it is far wrong! Missile Leader ran the best closing split of the meeting first up at Nowra. Winner is ordinary but little doubt ML was the pick going forward and any improvement into this will take some topping. Gun jock has knocked in 13 winners at 20% here over the past 12 months. Candlelit was a place behind ML at Nowra having been sent out odds-on. Doubt he goes odds-on anywhere again in a hurry but he's honest and should be thereabouts again. Best blowout can be the well-bred Superzoom. Stable have sent the odd smart one down to kick off in the Capital - Sunshine In Paris the current pin up on that front.

Race Analysis: Offspring wasn't suited by the slow 1200m first up but note that she improved bundles second up last preparation off a similar jiggy-jog return. If she can follow suit this prep she can take care of these and get back to better races. Suspect that she will with Allgemeine the one Penza will have to put the crosshairs on and run down. Battled on the heavy last time but string of Highway runs prior stack right up. Big Impact's ratings have been very consistent to this point but she might be ready to step up a notch now. First time we see her third up. Same spot for Fox Appeal and he was a winner third up last prep. Granted it was in weak company but he did a good job of it and was as good as ever last time.

Race Analysis: Great chance for Manderboss back on his home deck where he is 2/3 with the miss a terrific fourth in the Canberra Mile that rates to beat these. Ready to go back to the mile now off two rock solid efforts in much tougher company up in town. Fancy he stitches them up. Ruban Bleu continues to race well but the Boss has the ratings edge and RB's pattern is a bit of a worry from barrier one. Heywood is going to earn his cheque. Trooper Knuckle will fancy his chances with the weight pull and the gun jock but suspect he will need the Boss to be off his top.

Race Analysis: Want to be playing with house money come the last. No easy way home! Clovelly has the ratings and upside but the barrier tricks things up a bit. Default top pick ahead of the resuming Zelago who did win fresh last campaign and his best effort came at his Canberra run where he was again a winner. Dragons Breath ran a shocker last time but doubt we see him at 1400m again any time soon. Back to 1000m can suit much better. Best Intent resumes with bundles of upside for the home team. Didn't miss a place in his first prep in a couple of good form maidens and he can be better at his second spin around.
