Race Analysis: The opener revolves around Flying Impala. No real opportunity to bet after a brilliant third in a Super Maiden in town, with his first two runs this campaign better than what his rivals have produced thus far. Looks a one-way street but unfortunately the market knows that too. Clever Cookie meets Tenacious Lady a kilo better today despite the two hitting the line locked together last start. Hard to see them getting to the level of Flying Impala off the figures from last start though.

11	04x95	FLYING NED	-	7	55.0	KEITH DRYDEN	JAMES INNES JNR

Race Analysis: Willabelle pops up post-scratchings and it may be a good push from the barn as they've taken out the early favourite and left her in. She's a full sister to Group 3 winner Williamsburg and has shown promising signs at the trials. Not a whole lot of juice in the price but it's easy to see why she's come up top pick. Racing for the same connections is Stormy Revolution who was closing strongly over 900m on debut. Suspect the rise to 1200m is what she's looking for and the Collett/Neasham partnership are winning twice as much as the market expects at this track. Sharp improvement anticipated.

11	74x93	REVELAIDE	$3.8	10	55.0	G RYAN & S ALEXIOU	BRANDON LERENA

Race Analysis: Revelaide improved nicely when out to 1850m at Newcastle last start and stayed on strongly over the closing stages, with that form already being franked. Lightly raced and on the way up, she should relish the extra ground and if she can improve again, she'll be winning this. The key word there is 'improve', because her ratings at this stage only match what Tell The Future has done in his past couple. Really hit his straps since getting out to this trip and the gap between he and Revelaide in the market is too big. Domain Gardens has been good in her two runs back and appears to be working toward something. Not willing to risk her out to this trip for the first time.

CDC HANDICAP

Race Analysis: Enter The Dragon looks the winner. Great trials coming in against some handy opponents and now with only four rivals up against him, he can jump, lead, win. Unfortunately not a real betting prospect, but hopefully he'll provide a key pointer heading toward the Black Opal in a month's time. Serial Offender appears the main danger. Solid trial prior to her debut where she was very plain. Tipped straight out and returns without a trial, suspect she's come on since then.

10	2x657	REGION TIME	-	7	55.0	GRATZ VELLA	KAYLA NISBET

Race Analysis: Great race to start the quaddie. Barely anything between this lot and going wide in the first leg seems the best play. Matlock should be fitter for the fresh run where he beat Merisi close to the line. Wouldn't surprise to see him go on with the job although Merisi does meet him better at the weights. Good Lieutenant won well here two back and that figure stacks up to what Matlock & Merisi did last time out. Lichester could be an improver. Her two efforts at the mile have been inconclusive and now looks to get plenty in her favour while Donegal Lights just keeps winning.

11	55364	CRUCIAL WITNESS	-	9	55.0	GRATZ VELLA	KAYLA NISBET

Race Analysis: Interesting race at the top of betting. Bon Frankie won his Highway rather comfortably last start and the time there stacks up strongly against the rest of the card. The niggle is that he found himself in the right spot on that strong tempo and this may set up differently in the run. Another branch to the tree is the fact Rouge Lune beat him first-up before a somewhat plain effort at Goulburn last start. They meet at level weights now, but was Frankie's win a perfect storm or can he go on with it? Dorami has been a consistent galloper, though that may be her downfall here with Frankie and Rouge Lune's peak figures higher. Champions League isn't out of this if he's at his best.

15	47x36	CAPITAL VENTURE	-	10	55.0	JOHN ROLFE	LOUISE DAY

Race Analysis: Surprised Decimus isn't favourite in this. Two bad runs to end last prep over the longer trips but really hit top form around a mile last campaign. This looks like a perfect starting point for him having found the shorter trips too sharp early in last campaign. Ticks plenty of boxes with Collett booked and he can return on a winning note with a few niggles against his rivals. Shadow Dane resumed for the new barn with a win at Wagga and ratings suggest there is more to come. Time at Wagga was very slow, but he has the platform to build on. Form behind Hurricane Ablowing and Chasing A Quid is very noisy, with only 2 lengths spreading the field at Moruya. Although they appear suited by the rise in trip, they would both have to improve to get close to Decimus.

14	9x069	MAIDA QUID	-	7	55.0	BECKY BYRNE	COURTNEY FERRIS (A4.0)

Race Analysis: No real desire to bet in the last with plenty of scratchings and going wide in the Quaddie looks the play. My Girona looks the one off the last start effort at Parkes when only narrowly defeated. A few of these rate similarly, but hers is the most recent and she looks the most likely to repeat it. Astunner has figures to match though they have come over further and in different scenarios. She is a first-up winner previously though and appears the main danger.
